DETROIT IS READY FOR DEADEYES

By Ted F. Hanna

This is to welcome you to Detroit.

The program is set up to include events that have become customary at our reunions, besides some surprises that I will be announcing on opening day. For instance, I cannot tell you now much about the tour that has been scheduled for the afternoon of July 24. The highlight of that occasion could result in some unusual publicity for the Association.

Probably the most significant change is scheduled for the banquet program – no politician or other public figure making a speech, In fact, there will not be any speaker. The Hawaiian Holidays Review for which I have contracted will provide excellent family entertainment.

The management of the hotel has asked me to remind you that there is free indoors parking for registered guests. Your vehicle may be locked, but the keys must be left at the desk in the garage. The garage is located 1½ blocks from the hotel.

Our host hotel has just been completely remodeled. All of the Hilton's guest rooms have received special attention to make them unusually attractive and comfortable. The hotel employees have promised to do everything possible to justify your confidence in selecting the Detroit Hilton as the headquarters hotel.

Because subscriptions for THE DEADEYES were received in large numbers at the reunion in Des Moines and during the following months, the Association increased its original printing order to 1,000 copies. Of that number, only about 300 copies are available for sale.

A clean-up campaign is underway for the project that has already been a phenomenal success. The book is top-quality in all respects.

On December 14, 1969, General Cassidy, commanding general of New Jersey's 78th Division, retired after 40-years service. Leading citizenry of the state attended the retirement ceremonies.

General Cassidy is vice president of the Association of the United States Army, a member of the Reserve Officers Association and 96th Infantry Division Association.

SEND SOMETHING FOR THE NEWSLETTER

Editors of the DEADEYE Dispatch are interested in receiving items that might be used in forthcoming issues of the newsletter. Do you have pictures that were taken at any of the camps or on maneuvers? Who will take on the job of securing current information about Leyte?

In the next issue of the newsletter the feature story will be about Oahu and many of the places that were familiar to DEADEYES. A buddy from 383-K, Wayne Gocke, is the writer.

It makes no difference if you are not an author or photographer. Your story and snapshots will be okay. If you can furnish pictures, please try to identify the people and time or place of the event.

REUNION REGISTRATION HINTS

1. Please try to avoid signing in on the large posters showing who is present and their unit. That job will be done by those persons who are working at the registration tables, mostly by Corresponding Secretary, Richard Klassen, himself, who wants to follow his own system.

2. Because your buddies will be trying to locate you in the hotel or nearby areas, it is important that you should report your room number or phone number. A bulletin board will be available in the registration area for messages.

 Come early and stay late. It will be quite a thrill watching DEADEYES arrive, especially if they happen to be from your comapny and you can recall what they looked like 25 or more years ago.

OVERSEAS REPORT OKINAWA

By Colonel Leroy P. Collins Jr. HQ, 22d Field Army Support Command Assistant Chief of Staff, SPO Fort Lee, Virginia 23801

Home Address: 70 St. Lo Road Fort Lee, Virginia 23801

Colonel Collins was interviewed by a reporter for Pacific Stars and Stripes when he and Mrs. Collins visited Okinawa in April, 1969. At that time he explained that their trip was both for pleasure and business.

"The 96th Infantry Division Association knew that I was stationed nearby (Korea) and asked if I would come here to see Okinawa as it is today, take some pictures and write an article for the Association," he said.

Twenty four years and a miracle later, Collins had come back to relive the Battle of Okinawa. Then for two weeks, with the aid of his wife and friends, the one time 381st Regimental operations officer visited many of the battle sites with the memory of how they looked compared to how they are now.

MACHINATO INLET - When the 381st Infantry was moved from the eastern to the western side of the island in early April, the regiment was assigned the mission of seizing and securing the high ground adjacent to MACH-INATO INLET because it constituted the right side and anchor of the 96th Division's zone of action. This mission was further assigned to 3/381 which occupied the hill on the north side of the inlet. Battalion command, communications, mortar and supply areas were positioned on the reverse slopes.

One of these areas is shown here in a tomb compound, which incidentally, provided excellent cover from mortar and artillery rounds. Although a few of the tombs appear to be entirely neglected, most have been repaired and are well-maintained.

* * * * * * * * * * *

APARTMENT HOUSE - During the battle for the Maeda escarpment, the "APARTMENT HOUSE" barracks figured prominently. (See page 278 of Okinawa - The Last Battle.) Here K/381 assisted by CN/381 made one of the last attacks before the Division was relieved for a rest at the end of April, 1945. The building is now a girl's high school.

On the skyline can be seen some buildings on the east side of SHURI and some modern microwave relay stations.

URASOE-MURA ESCARPMENT (also called Maeda Escarpment) - We called the right side Sawtooth. This recent view from the north shows something new in the area below Needle Rock. There are row upon row of shrines built of stone and concrete, each dedicated to the memory of a Japanese soldier who died here. The shrines were built by a commercial firm with the approval of the Okinawan government and sold individually to the families of the fallen Japanese.

At the left were Hills 150 and 152. (See page 124 of the Division History for a similar view.) In that one week of fighting, more than 500 DEADEYES were killed, wounded or missing, but 2500 Japanese had been eliminated from the declining enemy force.

Picture #2 is another view of the same area looking toward the east. Except for the shrines, this particular part of the island has changed very little.

KAKAZU RIDGE - The 96th Division first encountered KAKAZU RIDGE on 8 April and, from that time until weeks later, elements of the 96th (383d and 381st) and the 27th Division became intimately acquainted with that important piece of terrain.

REMEMBER THE GORGE

Now called FUTEMA, this town was taken by 2/383 on 2-3 April, then soon became the Command Post of the 96th Division.

Here, Stars and Stripes Bureau Chief Andre Turgeon and Colonel Collins stand on the exact places where earlier stood the gate posts of the agricultural experiment station. (See page 229 of the Division History for the same view in April, 1945.) The gateposts were removed in late 1968 when they were broken by a truck. The compound is now a school for Okinawan children.

PROJECT

The Executive Officer of Fort Buckner, Colonel Martin Nolan (brother of Lt. Colonel Daniel A. Nolan, CO of 3/381) tells Colonel Collins of his plan to assist in the restoration of the Easley Monument.

Nolan, then a Lieutenant, was wounded at Machinato Airfield where his unit of the 27th Division came in on the 96th's right in April, 1945.

SHURI

This present-day view of SHURI shows the church (page 164 of Division History) rebuilt and used for Christian worship.

RETURN TO OKINAWA

As soon as we landed at the modern U.S. Air Force Base at Kadena, we sensed something different. Ray (Mrs. C) was most interested in the marvelous imports from other Asian countries like Japan, Taiwan, The Phillippines and Viet Nam. Both of us were impressed with the quality of goods for sale in the shops - there was a combination of the best of the United States items and of the specially attractive Japanese and Okinawan folk products.

To me, however, the big change was in the economy and the people. The overall tenor was one of prosperity and happiness. The boom was assisted by many foreign businessmen: 16,000 Japanese, 3,000 Americans, and lesser numbers of Filipinos and Chinese.

Everywhere were signs of affluence - new autos - mostly Japanese, but also some others, including American - were everywhere. Six-lane highways down the west side of the island fed into the great Air Force and Army bases. Live TV broadcasts from the U.S. were available through Japanese relays. Attractive houses have cropped up all over.

But the people - the energetic businessmen, the well-fed and well-built youngsters, the laughing okusans (housewives) - were particularly noticeable. Obviously, the Okinawans have many characteristics of the Japanese: Industrious, friendly, sturdy of build and sometimes very attractive.

Appearances belied the facts: The Ryukyus, and Okinawa especially, have an economy which is booming, yet is nearly entirely dependent upon the U.S. presence. The thousands of autos and the many small businesses are connected in many ways with the demands of the U.S. forces. The economy is really shallow because there is no heavy industry and but few industries arising from the natural resources of the area. Even electrical power is furnished by such devices as diesel-fueled U.S. barges and ships fastened securely to island power distribution stations. There is a portland cement plant, some hydroelectric firms and some fisheries.

Tourism in Okinawa might be said to have started with Peary's visit in 1853, but today the Japanese tourist trade is heavy, mostly by ship, although the Naha airport is busy, too. Many of the tourists are relatives of those who fought here.

The leftist influence is apparent. Strikes are punctuated by red flags and the strikers wear the usual Japanese scarf tied around the head. They seem full of resolve, yet are individually friendly with Americans. Their left leaning is probably resonsible for most of the "return" movement, but economics is also a factor because Red China is only 465 miles away.

96TH DIVISION ROAD

On the skyline to the northwest is the Army Officers' Club which stands where Momobaru stood on 2 April 1945 when it was overrun by 1/381. The houses are family quarters for soldiers and officers who are assigned to Fort Buckner.

The poem that was composed by Kohan for Clair Kai made me more than ever proud of the men of the 96th DEADEYES.

I grew up with Clair and left for the Army with him. We started at the beginning with the 96th and went all the way until I got hit on Friday the 13th in Okinawa.

There was another good old buddy that your life could depend upon. Yes, in more ways than one - on the front lines or on a pass and out of money. He was Melvin Vossler, 382-L, 2d platoon.

While in Hawaii this year, I took a few pictures of markers for the men whom I could recall. I came across this one on the way back from Major Addy's marker. Since then I have gone through my Division History and failed to find the name that is on the marker, snapshot enclosed.

I am wondering whether anyone who was in the 382d might know the parents or widow of this DEADEYE. If so, please send the picture to them on behalf of the 96th. It is my hope that a home for this picture can be found, otherwise I would like to keep it.

EDITOR'S NOTE: Name on the marker is: Eugene C. Payton, Texas PFC 382d Infantry March 9, 1925 July 5, 1945

From: John Massura 383-3d Bn. Hq. 5150 S. Rockwell Chicago, III. 60632

Here are some questions that maybe you have heard before. Do you know what happened to our regimental pins that were collected about the time when we left Hawaii? They were supposed to have been put in storage.

Also, what happened to our scrolls that were passed out when we crossed the equator? Those, too, were collected to be put into storage.

These questions have been bothering me for some time and I would like to know what you can find out.

I will be seeing you in Detroit.

I am a dues paying member, but I have been unable to attend a reunion. Observing the record that Company I has established in the Association, I would be remiss if I did not at least participate in the Mail Call.

My Army time began with the 97th Division, then I entered the ASTP program. When ASTP was terminated, I was sent to the 96th at Camp White, Oregon. Before long the fierce pride of the DEADEYES had rubbed off on me. Then I stayed with the Division right to the end in California when on February 3, 1946, the 96th ceased to exist as an active unit of the Army.

Henry White, President of our Association for 1969 - 1970 was the first NCO that I had in Company I. Here is a snapshot (be lieved taken in Leyte after the fighting) of our mortar section.

In the last issue of the Dispatch, I read with much interest the letter from Everett Angles, our 1st Sgt. in Okinawa. I was sorry to read about his serious back injuries.

I noted in the December issue of the American Legion Magazine that a reunion of the 96th Division will be held in July. Although I will be unable to attend, I want to send my regards to all of my old buddies and a big God bless you.

My time with the Division was short, having joined the 96th on the island of Mindoro. I came in as a replacement in 383-B, then was transferred to 796th Ordinance. When the 96th was being sent home, I went to the 86th Division in Luzon.

Since being discharged, I have married, fathered four children, found Christ as my Saviour, prepared for the ministry and served as pastor in the former EUB Church and now in the United Methodist Church for 18 years. For the last two and one half years I have been serving as a Chaplain at the VA center here in Dayton, Ohio. . . . . . . . . . . . . . . . .

If things go as planned, this will be our fifth year at the reunion.

In my spare time I enjoy calling on DEADEYES. So far, I have called on 22 men, some by phone. When I see my old buddies at our reunions, I feel that my time has been well spent.

I would like to locate Oscar Johnson, also from 381-B. Does anyone know where he is now?

I served in the Navy, and my ship, the USS Wichita covered for some of the 96th movements on Okinawa. My brother, Fred Creasey was a replacement in 382-E, then on May 18, 1945 he was killed by a mortar shell, so we were told. I have a letter saved from Fred saying that he was with a wonderful bunch of fellows.

Having read about the 96th Division planning a reunion, there are a couple of favors that I want to ask of you and other members of the Association. First, in regard to the Division History, I am very sure that books were sent to members of families of those who had been killed. However, when my mother passed away recently, no book was found. I am certain that I read the book and it had been promised to me at this time, but the family thinks that I am dreaming.

I would like to get a copy of the book about the 96th, so any help would be greatly appreciated.

Now I have only one more thing to ask of you and that is a big one to me. On your great day of reunion would you let the I mean the family of Pvt. Fred Creasey.

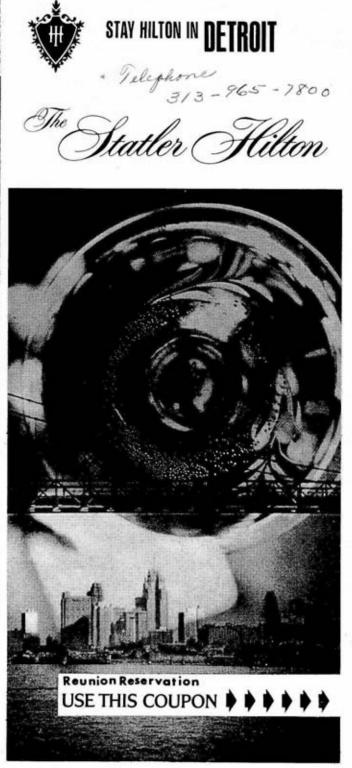

I hope that everyone has a wonderful time at the reunion and would like to hear from any member of the 96th at any time.

Most convention cities have their little special something that no one else has. Detroit's "little special something" is a whole country—Canada. It takes all of five minutes to get there, and the fare can run as high as a dollar, if you have a car full of people.
